

Professor Gillian Straker

Big R, little r. Where on earth are we in the relational psychoanalytic field?

4th July 2009, 10am to 4.30pm

Stewart House, 32 Russell Square, London, WC1B 5DN

Professor Straker will cover the different forms of relationship that she believes are spanned by the current field of relational psychoanalysis and psychotherapy. She will comment on the co-evolution of these modes of relationship with particular problems/pathologies. She will speak of some of the central debates in the relational field in regard to the issues of enactment and self disclosure and will address the issue of the analyst's subjectivity and responsiveness.

Gillian Straker is a clinical professor in psychology in the Faculties of Medicine and of Science, University of Sydney and is a visiting research professor at the University of the Witwatersrand in South Africa and is a Mellon Foundation Distinguished Scholar. She is an integrative psychotherapist and supervisor in private practice and is member of IARRP working party on diversity. She is well published in the areas of psychotherapy and spirituality. She has broad experience working with the survivors of traumatic stress, among them the survivors of torture and political violence. Flowing from this work she has developed and published new ways of thinking about the effects of trauma and its problematic manifestations including self harm.

Professor Gillian Straker

Big R, little r. Where on earth are we in the relational psychoanalytic field?

Application Form

Name:

Address:

Postcode:

Telephone Number:

Email Address:

Training Institute:

Any dietary requirements:

Would you like details about access?

The cost of the workshop including lunch is £90 for non-members, £80 for UKAPI members.
Send your cheque made payable to UKAPI to:

Cynthia Ransley,
3 Binden Road,
London,
W12 9RJ